Is the Euro Area Heading Back into Crisis? A Lecture by Erik Jones

Tuesday, March 3 | 4 to 5:30 PM

The euro area appears to be heading for fresh turmoil as the economy shows increasing signs of deflation; political uncertainty rises in Greece, Italy, and Spain; shock waves emanate from events in Ukraine, Russia, and the Middle East; and the German government remains wedded to fiscal consolidation. Erik Jones, Professor of European Studies and Director of European and Eurasian Studies at School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University, argues that the euro area is already in crisis; European policymakers are just reluctant to admit that fact or to act accordingly.

Free and open to the public. An informal reception will follow.

Pardee School of Global Studies | 121 Bay State Road

