The Boston University College of Fine Arts School of Theatre and Dance Program present

Aurora Borealis: A Festival of Light and Dance
Boston University Dance Theater, December 5, 2022

Boston, MA –The Boston University College of Fine Arts School of Theatre, in collaboration with the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, presents the 21st annual Aurora Borealis: A Festival of Light and Dance. Aurora Borealis is a vibrant exploration of the relationship between light and form with a focus on collaboration and experimentation, featuring dance and movement pieces by faculty and students. The performances are Monday, December 5, 7pm and 9pm. Yo-EL Cassell and Micki Taylor-Pinney are the artistic co-directors. Mark Stanley is the Lighting Design Faculty Advisor; lighting will be designed by Slick Jorgensen, a graduate student in the School of Theatre Lighting Design Program. Lynda Rieman is the BU Dance Theater Production Manager.

This year's concerts will include:

- Directed Study projects in composition and direction by CFA acting students and dance minors under the advisement of Yo-EL Cassell and Micki Taylor-Pinney, respectively.
- Choreography performed by students from BU Dance Program classes, including work by dance faculty, Jossie Coleman, for her Afro-Fusion, CardioJazzFunk, and Hip Hop classes, and Liz Roncka, for her Movement Improvisation class.
