

Female Summer Trip Co-Leader in INDIA needed for Putney Student Travel programs!

Putney Student Travel seeks qualified college graduates to co-lead a group of 16 high school students from the U.S. on high-quality, non-touristy Global Awareness in Action program in India.

Please note that leaders must be present at an Orientation in Putney, Vermont June 7-10, 2012 (we will fly you to/from orientation from within the U.S., but cannot fly leaders internationally), and must be a US national or possess a valid green card already.

Putney's Global Action program in India focuses on Community Building and Sustainable Development (<http://goputney.com/programs/india-2/>). This program will spend time in Ladakh, the Kullu Valley, and Delhi. Leaders will facilitate learning about these issues through local grassroots projects and talks with local experts. Experience with the specific topic and abroad experience in India is necessary. The focus of this program is to create a substantive and engaging presentation, and present it to other Global Action groups at a concluding forum at Yale University.

Candidates need to have significant travel experience in India. Proficiency in Hindi is required.

You must be able to motivate and energize students in a wide range of situations and settings. Due to the high degree of independence and responsibility granted to leaders, successful candidates must have a substantial capacity to organize, lead, and work well with others. Leaders will receive a stipend in addition to having all expenses paid during travel. They are responsible for their own health insurance, and should be certified in Basic First Aid.

If you are excited about the prospect of helping students learn about a different culture this summer, email a resume and a short cover letter outlining your experiences in language, travel, community service, working with young people, and leadership as soon as possible.
