PODCAST PRESENTATIONS

Suicide Assessment and Intervention, Designed and delivered two-hour podcast for National Association of Social Workers (NASW) (06/2010).

RESEARCH

2012-Present: Missing Link Project. Conducted eleven focus groups with varied stakeholders such as social work clinical and macro practitioners, board regulators, social work faculty, NASW staff and other key informants. The Association of Social Work Boards' (ASWB) Foundation for Research and Consumer Education in Social Work Regulation funded a team of social work researchers to undertake a study of quality and effectiveness issues in continuing professional education (CPE) in the social work profession. The study is being conducted by Boston University professors Mark Gianino, Betty J. Ruth and Scott Miyake Geron.

2008-2010: Suicide Education Enhancement (SEEP) Project . Conducted five focus group interviews with social work faculty for the qualitative component of DPH –funded project focusing on the integration of suicide prevention and intervention content in MSW school curricula. Conducted qualitative data analysis with two dual degree MSW/MPH students, co-published findings and co-presented results nationally. Co-principal investigators, Betty Ruth, MSW, MPH and Jordana Muroff, PhD.

2007-09: Principal investigator: Multicultural Youth Study. The study examined the experiences of transracially adopted (TRA) youth residing in homes headed by gay and lesbian parents. 13 participants were qualitatively interviewed for this project and results were published in a peer-reviewed journal and disseminated through national and regional presentations.

Dissertation research: Adaptation and Transformation: The Transition to Parenthood For Adoptive Gay Male Couples. This qualitative phenomenological study explored the experiences of adoptive gay male couples in their transition to parenthood. Specifically, the purpose was to understand the stressors these couples experience, the protective factors that buffer them from these stressors, and the impact of this transition upon their relationship. Results of the project were published and presented regionally and nationally.
