

Sentence Structure In-class Activity

- 1) Exchange a draft of your recent paper with another classmate.
- 2) As you read your partner's draft, pay special attention to the sentence structure. In particular, mark any issues you see in the draft that relate to the author's:
 - use and types of sentence subjects
 - subject-verb agreement
 - placement of adjectives and adverbs
 - fragments
- 3) Next, write a one-paragraph letter to your partner, in which you summarize three biggest concerns you have about their sentence structure. Be specific and give examples of issues you noticed in their writing.
- 4) Finally, share your notes and your letter with your partner.
